

12 Things important to me

A fun way to list those things that are really important to each whānau member.

1. Gather the whānau together and read out the following to them:
“We have just been told on the radio that the world is going to end in an hour and a spaceship is here to take us away to a new planet. You have five minutes to collect three things to take with you. What would you take?”
2. Take turns for the whānau members to share what they would take with them and why.
3. When everyone is finished have a talk about what are the things that are of real importance to each person and how this can help us to understand each other better.

Learning

It will be interesting for you to note the different values that each whānau member places on things and people. You may also find that values change with the different ages of your children.
